Health and Beauty

The battle of dry skin is a problem the year round for some women, but becomes quite worrysome during the cold winter months.

Cold wind, overheated houses, and hot drafts all take their toll. For these reasons, this hazard is often called a hazard of our times.

The very best thing for dry skin are the new mosturizurers that provide a fresh dew-fall for the complexion.

The moisturizers pentrate the dry, flaky top layer of skin and enable the under-layers to better absorb benefits that formerly turned aside at the surface.

Moisturizers come in any form you may desire — creams, lotions, jellies.

Every skin is different and has different needs. What is best for your friends may do nothing at all for you. It is possible to have an over-abundnce of oil in the skin of the nose and chin and have extremely dry skin around the important eye area. You must learn to deal with problems like this if you want to take the best possible care of your complexion.

Large pores are a problem to many of us. As far as we know, there is no preparation that can make a positive claim to shrinking large pores back to small. However, there are ways to help the situation.

Try some of the tightening lotions that take up the slack in skin-in pores too. Use a good astringent day-in-day-out and a special masque at least once a week.

TIPS TO HOUSEWIVES

Moderately full skirts, two to two and one-half yards wide; open, V-necklines with low rolling collars; durable armholes and blouse backs or two-piece garments which alow freedom of movement; large pockets; and three-quarter - length front openings . . these are dress features desired by physically handicapped women surveyed in the Washington, D. C. area.

Clothing specialists of the USDA Agricultural Research Service made the survey to obtain guides in developing design for women suffering from arthritis or other diseases causing difficulty in using hands, for those confined to wheel chairs, and for those wearing braces or crutches.

Mrs. Byrd J. Mangee, clothing specialist at VPI, says many of the women interviewed expressed a desire for slacks. These, if of good design, could be used for exercising daily as well as for comfort, however, modern designs tend to bind and are too tight over braces and, therefore, are uncomfortable.

Wider skirts give ample room for getting about. They are comfortable for prolonged setting, help conceal braces and simplify self care. Homemakers confined to wheel chairs find low-rolling collars stay neat and do not ride up uncomfortably against the back of the neck while operating the wheel chair.

Women who use crutches like setin sleeves, cut high under the arms so they fit better than other styles and do not pull up and destroy a dress or blouse back.

The separate skirts and blouses or two-piece dresses are practical for those wearing braces. They can be made of heavier material to conceal braces and resist damage from brace hatches. If damage is done it is easier and less expensive to replace a skirt than a whole dress.

Large pockets, well placed, and durably attached, for keeping eye glasses, keys, medicines, paper and pencils and other items needed close at hand were requested by handicapped women doing their own housework.

The three quarter front opening makes it easy to get into and out of dresses and gives a more durable dress than one opening all the way down the front.

Social Security Information

By Donald H. Renner

"Three moves are worse than a fire," according to an old saying, but one move can lead to trouble for people getting social security checks, unless they notify the social security office of their new address.

Seeing that each of the 13 million people on social security in the country get their checks on time is a very important part of our job, and it can be made easier if we get a prompt notice of a change of address.

If you move after filing a claim for social security benefits, you should notify the Social Security Administration either in person or by mail, Beneficiaries were given postcards for this purpose when they filed their claims, and additional cards are available at the District Office, 112 Langhorne Road, Lynchburg, Virginia, or from the local field representative, who is at the Courthouse in Appomattox on the fourth Monday of each month, at 10:00 A. M.

"If we can get the notice early in the month, the next month's check can be sent to the new address with little or no delay. Be sure to furnish your claim number when you request a change of address."

QUESTIONS OF THE WEEK

Editor's note: Here are the questions asked most frequently during the past week by Virginia farmers. Staff members of the VPI Agricultural Extension Service and/or Experiment Station supply answers).

Q. When should I apply lime for alfalfa?

A. If the pH of the soil is 6.0 or below, the lime should be applied 6 months before seeding. If pH is above 6.0, half of it can be applied several weeks before seeding and the rest just before seeding. Be sure to have your soil tested. County agents can give instructions.

Q. What can I sow now for permanent pasture?

A. It is too late to sow permanent pasture now. Wait until the regular pasture seeding season in the spring.

Q. How can I get rid of chickweed in various crops?

A. During the dormant season of legumes, use chloro IPC. In lawns or small grains, use dinitro. Apply according to the recommendations of the manufacturer.

Q. Lacebugs are troublesome on my mulberry and sycamore trees. What can I do?

A. The leaves will be falling off soon anyway, so it is likely too late to apply chemicals now. If the problem develops again next spring, spray the trees with DDT.

Q. Can diseases over-winter in compost piles?

A. Yes, most diseases, and insects also. A compost pile is an excellent thing to have, but be sure you use materials which are not infested.

Good Reason

The defendant acknowledged that he hadn't spoken to his wife in five years, and the judge put in a question.

"What reason have you?" he asked severely.

Replied the husband, "I didn't want to interrupt her."

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

Bible Material: Acts 5:17-42.
Devotional Reading: Psalm 37:30-40.

God First

Lesson for November 8, 1959

"WE MUST OBEY God rather than men." So said the Apostles long ago. It is one of the famed quotations from the Bible. Is this just something from "Bible times" or does it mean something today?

"In God We Trust" is a motto everybody has seen on his money. But how many people do trust in God more than in money? They say that the difference between North and South America is that the Europeans who came to settle South America came to find gold, but those who came to North America came to find God Is this true? And if it is, could you guess it from what North Americans spend their time running after?

Dr. Foreman

What Kind of God?

"Everybody talkin' about heaven ain't goin' there," an old "spiritual" sings. You might add, "Everybody talkin' about God ain't his real friend." With better grammar we might say that there is a lot of talk about God, in magazines and clubs and newspapers and even in the church, that is no more than talk. It does not go deep and it means very little. But even when it does go deep and mean something, does it mean the right thing? We don't want to be pessimistic about this. We don't mean to accuse the whole population of being hypocrites. Nevertheless there is an appalling lot of loose talk (set to music sometimes) about God. "GOD FIRST" is a noble motto. A God who is not first is no God. But "God first" is noble only if it means the right kind of God—or in other words the true God, for the true God is the only right kind of God there is.

Therefore all wrong kinds of God are actually no gods at all, only make-believe images carved out in the minds of mistaken people. For instance, if people sing about "the Man upstairs," the may think they are singing about God, but they are not. God is no a man, not even an enormous, sky-filling man.

Rival Gods

It is not far wrong to say that whatever a person with all his heart puts first, that is God for him. Religious people sing, "Praise God from whom all blessings flow." But if we may judge people's true opinions by their actions, we may have to conclude that some people if they were absolutely frank about it, would prefer another doxology They would have a revised version. It would be "Praise Wealth from which all blessings flow." Not only wealth, but public opinion, security, power, success (measured by height of tailfins and horsepower in the motor) may likewise be as God to those who expect all blessing from such things. Now a doll is perfectly harmless, indeed it may be a pretty toy, so long as it is only a doll. But if some one gets hold of a doll and sets it up as a god and prays to it, that is idolatry and it is bad. So wealth and success and security are good things; it is when they are set up as rivals to the true God that they become symbols of sin.

Loyalty Oath

We hear a good deal about loyalty oaths. The fact is, every one who is a professed Christian has made a public vow of loyalty to God, when he has taken his stand as a member of the church of God. Now what? If that is the end of it, if he is seldom if ever seen in the church again, if he can never be counted on to share in any good work, if he cannot spare even a tenth of his income for the Kingdom of God. then what did his loyalty oath amount to? This is Temperance Sunday, and the essence of temperance, of the Christian sort, is living with consideration for others, not selfishly for your own comforts. A church "member" who habitually spends on luxuries (whether liquor or whatever) for himself, what he might be sharing for the help of the needy (in mind, body and spirit) through all the world, is a member in name only. If we really mean "God First," we mean we intend to obey God first. To live for oneself alone shows that God is, after all, a stranger.
